Description

As an Indian citizen, most of us are more or less aware of our rights and duties towards the nation but, do we know what are the constitutional rights of Indian students? Indian law has not defined any statutory meaning of the term 'student'. All the legal rights available to a citizen of India are available to students in general which makes it challenging for a student in India to exercise their rights in a proper way.

According to Prasouk Jain and Apurv Chandola from LPJ & Partners, the word student has not yet been statutorily defined and there is also a lack of any codified law for Student rights in India which makes it difficult for students today to exert their rights in a systematic manner.

They share, "Laws focusing on the needs of students is a much-needed exercise to be conducted by the Government to avoid biases in academics, sports, and other spheres. Codified laws could further help protect them from the arbitrary action of institutions, individuals, or the state. While the same is under process, awareness is the key for a student to protect his or her rights.
